Portrait: Grew up in the mountains. A passion for skiing. Originally wanted to become a ski racer, not an architect. Gained experience of the construction industry in his parents' architectural firm, learnt the basics of service in the tourism industry and how to deal with guests and customers during the summer holidays. Baccalaureate school and apprenticeship as a structural draughtsman, a degree in architecture from a university of applied sciences and postgraduate studies in economics. Since 1998 also active in the fields of building physics and acoustics. Experience in various areas helps to provide customers with the best possible service. Difficult tasks drive us to the next level. Joined Gartenmann Engineering shortly after the opening of the Zurich site.
